Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Arguments regarding use of null packets are not persuasive. While arguments are detailed, the crux of the matter is this: it is intended that channels experiencing inteference be avoided. Soussi provides a method of avoiding interference by assessing conditions and transmitting data only on "clean" channels. Applicant avoids interference by transmitting data on "clean" channels and null packets on channels experiencing inteference. As previously noted, the transmission of null packets is not considered a positive limitation in that null packets do not initiate any further action versus not transmitting in the channel at all and therefore is considered equivalent in terms of operational effect.
